FROM SLAVERY TO RICHES. The richest and most powerful man socially and politically, in the republic of Guatamala is John Knight, a negro, who was born a slave in Alabama, and who was sold from the public slave block as late as March, 1860. Knight was an exceptionally bright boy. He never saw his father, who was sold in a distant State before he was born. The family to whom Knight belonged gave him an education, and at the age of 16 the boy was sold for $1,600, a high price, considering that the sale occurred in November, 1860, the very time of Lincoln's election.

Knight remained with the family of his new master until the close of the war. In common with thousands of other slaves, he then declared his free-He walked to New Orleans, and for the first time in his life went away from his master's properties. In New Orleans he worked as a wharf laborer for a firm which handled fruits from Central America. He saved his money. Every one about the wharves knew John Ku g t, the most capable and in dustrious colored man there. One day in June, 1866, he was sent by his em ployer down to Yucatan, in Central America, to live there as boss of the acking and shipping of fruits to New O leans. He had $20 a week salary.

That was practically the beginning of John Knight's millions. He lived in Yucatan a year, worked hard, saved his every cent, and dreamed of the day when he could be an orange, banam and pineappie shipper on his own account. Having heard of the great tracts of free and fertile lands south of San Cristoval, in Guatemala, he went and located there. A live, wide-awake person was something unique in those days in that region of siestas and tropi cal sunshine. A revolution, in which Ramon Sanchez had been disposed, was nst at its close. John Knight saw what hard work and an opportunity to gain the favor of the new administration would do for himself. He proposed that, for a concession of fifty thousand acres of land suitable for pineapple and banana growing, he would go to New Orleans and get the wholesale fruit dealers there, who ruled the American market 30 years ago, to agree to buy $2,000,000 a year of Guatemalan fruits. The Gua temala government gladly accepted the proposition. In less than three months the deal was consummated at New Orleans. It was the beginning of the trade of millions of dollars annually.

To make a long story short, John Knight got other concessions, as be demonstrated the profit there was in growing fruits for the United States markets. The shipping business to New York and San Francisco was started and enormously enlarged.

He married a native young woman in Stan 4 in 1872, and the union has been a great help to his fortunes. About 20 years ago he induced New England capitalists to embark extensively in coffee growing in Guatemals, and he invested over $150,000 of his own capital in the industry. The government gave him a very advantageous shipping concession for his efforts in bringing capital to the country. Coffee-growing proved wonderfully remunerative for a dezen years. At one time the annual shipments of coffee from the Knight plantation were the largest from any private estate in all Central America.

The negro planter branched out in other directions. He went to Philadelphia and contracted to furnish many thousands of feet of mahogany yearly for 10 years. Then he bought up large tracts of mahogany trees in Nicaragua and Guatemala. At one time he was the second largest dealer in mahogany logs in the world. Everything he touch ed he made a success. He lives in royal style in the suburbs of Guatemala city. No one in that region except the Barrioses ever entertained so lavishly as Don Knight and his wife. Their home is a large, modern house of plate-glass windows, polished woods, costly hangings, all furnished from New York and New Orleans. A small army of servants attends the wants of the family .- [Salt Lake Tribune.
